

We have never seen a more clear example of the dangers of media consolidation than Sinclair Broadcasting, which is forcing their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary just days before the election.

When large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for their bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. Airing such a one-sided piece of propaganda (for that's what this anti-Kerry show is), without showing an equally slanted piece in favor of Kerry soon after, is underhanded and does NOT serve the public interest.

The license renewal process ought to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
